

In today's gospel passage, Luke continues his account of Jesus' Galilean ministry, spreading the Good News of the Kingdom. The story he recalls is a very striking one, and Luke tells it with a sensitivity that moves us each time we hear it. As he enters the town, accompanied by a large crowd, Jesus was confronted by a tragic funeral procession. The only son of a widow was being taken for burial. Moved with compassion, Jesus comforted the unfortunate woman, and stopping the procession by putting his hand on the bier carrying the dead man, he called him back to life, and 'gave him to his mother'. To understand fully the pathos of this incident, we must recognise that this widow's situation was a desperate one. She faced more than the loss of her son. In the patriarchal society to which she belonged, the loss of her only son left her without the support of a male relative to protect her interests.

But Luke wants us to find more in this story than evidence of the compassion of Jesus. Immediately after describing this incident, he recalls the messengers who came from John the Baptist to ask Jesus, 'Are you the one who is to come?' To this question Jesus replied by reminding them of the signs spoken of by the prophets, signs that would announce the coming of the Messiah: 'Tell John what you have seen and heard, the blind see, the lame walk, lepers are cleansed, the dead are raised to life, the Good News is proclaimed to the poor' (Luke 7.22).

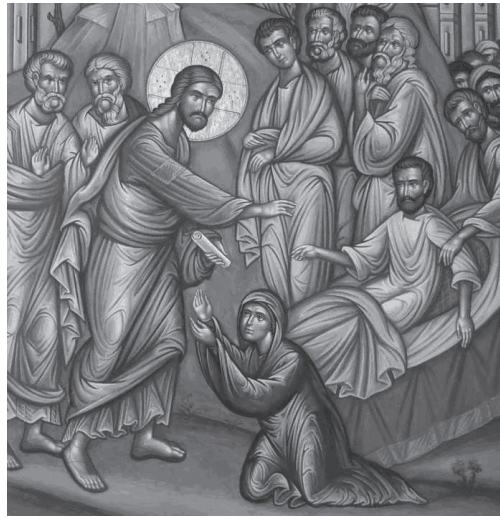

Luke is presenting Jesus as the final prophet of God. In the traditions of old Israel, both Elijah and Elisha restored to life the sons of widows. We hear of Elijah's miracle in today's first reading. What a contrast between the desperate efforts and prayers of Elijah – in many ways the paradigmatic prophet of the Old Testament – to bring the child back to life, so that he could 'give him to his mother', and the sovereign authority with which Jesus performs the miracle in his own name: 'Young man, I tell you to get up'. More than that, he displays an authority that is greater than that of the prophets of the Old Testament – in that his compassion led him to disregard the ritual prescriptions of the Law, which made one who had contact with a corpse 'unclean'.

In this miracle, Jesus demonstrates his invincible power over Death, 'the last enemy to be destroyed' as Paul tells us (1 Cor 15.26). He is anticipating the ultimate triumph of his Paschal Mystery. Today's reading from Paul's letter to the Galatians – recalling his sharing in Christ's triumph, when God 'called him through his grace, and chose to reveal his Son to him' – reminds us that we can all know the compassion of Jesus, as he shares with us his triumph over the reign of death.

Working wonders with families in our neighbourhoods...

At age 16, Lauren was hospitalized after receiving a severe beating from her mother. The violence had been going on for several months, and Lauren was afraid to talk about it. Eventually her mother faced charges and Lauren was removed from her family's home, coming to Sancta Maria House in search of a more permanent, safe place to live. Lauren spent 2 years here, making many positive gains, learning to release anger and focus on her bright future. Lauren is grateful for all of the devoted staff at Sancta Maria House for making such a wonderful difference in her life. Last year, ShareLife-supported Family Service agencies provided family counselling to over 5,100 people in the Greater Toronto Area.

ShareLife's campaign continues! Please give generously. You can work wonders!

Bill C-14, Medical Assistance in Dying Passed 3rd House Reading on May 31

We are continuing to urge the Senate to further protect the conscience rights for physicians and facilities in the legislation. We are pleased to see MPs approved two suggested amendments to the Bill, affirming the protection of freedom of conscience and of religion in the Canadian Charter of Rights and stating that a doctor cannot be compelled to perform euthanasia or physician-assisted suicide. While we oppose any form of assisted suicide/euthanasia, we recognize that Bill C-14 is imminent and that the inclusion of conscience rights is an important first step to protect those who object to hastening death for their patients. There is still time to make an impact. If you have not done so already, please visit www.canadiansforconscience.ca
